Organ Donation Centre

The Thai Red Cross Organ Donation Centre (ODC) was established under the Thai Red Cross Society in 1994.

Policies

1. Promoting organ donation
2. Fair allocation without purchasing
3. Maximum efficacy in usage of the donated organs

Background Organization Model

- 1988 Adhoc committee about ODC
- 1988 Round table meeting about death
- 1989 Diagnosis of Braindeath (Medical Council)
- 1992 Thai Transplantation Society
- 1994 Organ Donation Centre (ODC)
- 1995 Code of ethics about organ transplantation (Medical Council)
- 1999 Authorized ODC by Medical Council
- 2000 Transplant Coordinator Society
- 2000 Heart Valve Bank (ODC)
- 2008 Renal Transplantation under Universal coverage

Historical Background

- 1972 Kidney Transplantation
- 1987 Liver Transplantation
- 1987 Heart Transplantation
- 1989 Heart-lung Transplantation
- 2004 Liver-kidney Transplantation
- 2007 Pancreas-kidney Transplantation

Functions

1. Public and healthcare education and awareness
2. Organ donation registry
3. Recipient registry
4. Organ allocation and distribution
5. Organ transplant coordination
6. Organ preservative and transportation for organ recovery
7. Donor family care

Organ Donation

Organ donation is the process of giving an organ or a part of an organ for the purpose of transplantation into another person. Most of the organs used in transplants come from people who have suffered brain death as the result of an accident, heart attack, or stroke.

Organ Transplantation

Organ Transplantation is the transfer (engraftment) of human organs from a donor to a recipient with the aim of restoring their function

Who can donate ?

All people of all ages should consider themselves potential organ and tissue donors. There are a few absolute exclusions (HIV positive, active cancer, systemic infection) and no strict upper or lower age limits. The condition of your organs is more important than age. Potential donors will be evaluated for suitability when the occasion arises.

Buddhism and Organ Donation

"Organ donation is a great merit and highly praised"

The revered monk, Phra Phromkunaporn (Prayuth Payutto) awarded the UNESCO Prize for Peace Education, supporting organ donation.
